kidnapping in this and adjacent provinces disclose two interesting facts in Chinese sociology -a belief that kidnappers are in the possession of denos which, administered to intended victims, bring them under the absolute control of the administrator of the drugs Concorning this I shall not at present write. The other fact informs us that the kidnapped aphonized by drugs, are wholly deprived of the power of speech, etiplated by being immured in total darkness; or deformed by mutilation in order to fit them for exhibition by showmen; although these flagitious crimes are capital offences they are not wholly repressible. Unhappily these forms of man's inhumanity to man but partially indicate the sufferings to which man-stealers subject those whom they enslave: Of all the tortures which poli ical hats or religious rencour has devised is indubitably desortication or flaving alive, which asually is not very protracted, but if the skinning is performed bit by bit, as when the kidnapped is being fitted to play the role of wild man, the sufferingsthus inflicted must be agonizing beyond imagination to conceive. This takes place when human skin is removed for transplanting the hide of an animal, bear or deg, as small sections of the body can only be denuded at a time; to enable the subject to survive, a long period must be taken up in the full process of making a wid man, involving exeruciating torture before the buman being can be reduce! to the appearance Captain Samuel Ashton, formerly commander and condition of a bento. The inbruitment is dernia or trus skin. He was able to stoud and stooping down he wrote five observators Less ghastly though fearfully gruesome is an of transplanting that. I find amongst my Berstological notes, is the making of human parasites, causing an adhesion of a boy to a man, chest to chest, forming an epiphyte, rather . such a union is produced by removing the skin of the agbi ots of the operation, and lashing the two together, so as to keep the denuded portions in apposition until complete adhesion is affected. by vascular connection, when the unhappy creatures are fitted up for exhibition; the boy being held nendent by straps.

Deprivation of light for several years renders a child a great cariosity, voice being destroycomplete, no ray of the san ever rlanced upon the young man, who looked like war when brought out of the subterranean call in which he had been immured, causing the spectators to imagine he had been fed on lard and white sagar. He squatted with the palms of his hands together, presenting the appearance of an ecstatic monk absorbed in contemplation, as one for the verge of metamorphosis; always temple was levelled to the ground. Administration. CANADA'S DEMAND FOR A PRESERVATIAL AGREEMENT WITH THE EMPIRE. LONDON, 28th May. In the House of Lords Lord Dunravan moved for a copy of the motion agreed to by the Cansdian Parliagent April 25 regarding preferential trade with the United Kingdom. He said that he considered the motion a distinct proposal for reciprocity with every part of the empire. This is the first time such a proposal has been advanced by a self-governing colony in a practical shape. He thought that the engastion should be abtentively received by Great Britain.

Lord Salisbury made a very practical suggestor at the beginning of the session, when he proposed that the colonies be invited to coufer with the home Government on the subject. It will greatly increase Britain's export trade with Canada and expand her manufacturing inan of ellerem duty upon them, purchasing a reon Usuadian rev-food products imported into Great Britain than that lovied on similar imfice of other British commercial interests. Such word Balfout, Parliamentary Secretary to the . Sourd of Trade, replied that the matter was of the greatest importance to the country. The Government agrees to accept Lord Dunraven's motion, because it is obvious Parliamont should know officially what specific resolution Unpada had come to, but he hoped it would be clearly understood that he did not agree with Lord Dusraveo's arguments of the policy foreshadowed in Canada's resolution.
